

finance covenant

Dearest Creator, giver of all my gifts, I am ever reminded that if it weren't for you, I would be nothing, have nothing. I thank you for all of my gifts ... gifts of intelligence, reason, sound judgment, heart and soul, health, family, friends, the beautiful landscape of western Kentucky, the bountiful crops, fruits of the Gulf, basin and bayous, sunrise, sunsets, abundant wildlife and beautiful flowers. I also thank you for my financial blessings. I gratefully acknowledge that they come from you. It is you who said, "You who follow my teachings will be my disciples." Your words are very firm on the use of money. I pledge to honor you and your church with a proportionate, planned and sacrificial share of my financial blessings. I will show good faith by signing a commitment card stating my intentions to my faith community. I do this out of my deep love and gratitude to you, heavenly Father. Amen.

Get purses for yourselves that do not wear out, a never-failing treasure with the Lord which no thief comes near nor any moth destroys. Wherever your treasure lies, there your heart will be."

Reasons to Give

Financial blessings are a gift to us from a loving God. How we manage financial gifts is a barometer of our level of faith. People who make a decision to give to God from their first fruits and not the leftovers find their faith is deepened, and rather than find themselves lacking, they become more enriched spiritually and materially.

Gifts of material blessings should be Sacrificial (pinch a little), Proportionate (Does it adequately reflect a true measure of your financial blessings?), Planned and Identifiable (to allow your parish leaders to plan adequately).

Your gift will be representative of a true Christian commitment if it is sacrificial, planned, consistent and proportionate. Please study this Standards of Giving Guide to help you determine what your present percentage of giving is. You may wish to increase your level of giving to a percentage that truly reflects a sacrificial and proportionate gift.
